Amy Borrus Named as CII Interim Executive Director

Washington, D.C., June 22, 2015 — The Board of Directors of the Council of Institutional Investors (CII) today named Amy Borrus as the Council's interim executive director. Her appointment follows the recent resignation of Ann Yerger, CII's executive director since 2005.

Borrus, formerly CII's deputy director, will serve as interim executive director while a committee of the board conducts a search for a permanent executive director.

Borrus joined CII in May 2006 as deputy director. Prior to that, she was a reporter for BusinessWeek for 25 years, covering business, finance and politics from Washington, D.C., London and Tokyo. She earned a B.A. in English and history from the University of Pennsylvania, a master's degree in International Relations from the London School of Economics and the Claritas Investment Certificate from the CFA Institute.

The Council of Institutional Investors (CII) is a nonprofit association of pension funds, other employee benefit funds, endowments and foundations, with combined assets that exceed $3 trillion. CII is a leading voice for effective corporate governance and strong shareowner rights. CII educates its members, policymakers and the public about corporate governance, shareowner rights and related investment issues, and advocates on its members' behalf.
